

I would ask the FCC to please not alter the Wisconsin no call law in any manner. Businesses do not have the inherent "right" to invade the privacy and sanctity of my home with a rude and obnoxious telemarketer. It's difficult to understand why the Banker's Association or any business would want the right to call anyone who has expressly stated that they do not want to be called. What is the point?